

Knowledge Organiser History Key Stage 1

Seaside Holidays in the Past

Key Vocabulary

Bathing hut/machine
 Bathing costume
 Steam train
 Organ grinder and Monkey
 Sunday best
 Bank Holidays
 Punch and Judy
 Metal bucket and spade
 Promenade.
 Donkey rides
 Modesty
 1900s, 1950s, 1960s

Famous British Seaside Resorts

Scarborough, Bridlington,
 Skegness, Great Yarmouth,
 Bournemouth, Llandudno,
 Blackpool

Key Facts

People have been going on seaside holidays in the UK for over a hundred years.
 Victorians travelled to seaside resorts by steam train. They often went for a day trip on Bank Holidays.
 Victorians wore their Sunday best to go the seaside. This means they dressed very smartly in suits for men and long dresses for ladies.
 Victorians enjoyed walking on the pier and the promenade.
 Victorians would get changed into their bathing costume in a bathing machine because it was considered rude for ladies to be seen in a swimming costume.
 Many things that we see at the seaside now, such as donkey rides, ice cream, Punch and Judy and buckets and spades have been enjoyed by people of all ages for many years.

